

NEIL A.R. GOW

Department of Biosciences, University of Exeter

STRUCTURE OF FUNGAL CELL WALL IMMUNE EPITOPES

THE ORIGINS OF IMMUNITY

The carbohydrates of the fungal cell wall exhibit remarkable variability—posing a significant challenge for both the immune system and researchers. This lecture will explore how immune-relevant cell wall structures form and how their accessibility changes in response to environmental factors.

04.15, Tuesday, 10:00

7.411

ELTE Institute of Biology, Pázmány Péter stny. 1/c